DETAILED ACTION

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 101

35 U.S.C. 101 reads as follows:

Whoever invents or discovers any new and useful process, machine, manufacture, or composition of matter, or any new and useful improvement thereof, may obtain a patent therefor, subject to the conditions and requirements of this title.

Claims 1 and 18 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 101 because the claimed invention is directed to non-statutory subject matter.

Claims 1 and 18.

The invention does not require physical acts to be performed outside the computer independent of and following the steps to be performed by a programmed computer, where those acts involve the manipulation of tangible physical objects and result in the object having a different physical attribute or structure. See Diamond v. Diehr, 450 US at 187, 209 USPQ at 8. The steps of making data on the energy flow for the first area and the second area accessible do not impose independent limitations on the scope of the claim beyond those required by the mathematical operation and abstract limitations because the accessibility is not actual measured values of physical phenomena. In re Galnovatch, 595 F.2d at 41 n.7, 201 USPQ at 145 n.7; In re Sarker, 588 F.2d at 1331, 200 USPQ at 135. The steps of making data ... accessible have no direct effect on the physical world outside the computer, because the fact that the data is accessible does not indicate a step of accessing said data. Thus, the claimed invention merely inputs data into the system and performs a mathematical algorithm without any limitation to a practical application as a result of the algorithm or outcome and is therefore deemed to be non-statutory.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 102

The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(e) the invention was described in (1) an application for patent, published under section 122(b), by another filed in the United States before the invention by the applicant for patent or (2) a patent granted on an application for patent by another filed in the United States before the invention by the applicant for patent, except that an international application filed under the treaty defined in section 351(a) shall have the effects for purposes of this subsection of an application filed in the United States only if the international application designated the United States and was published under Article 21(2) of such treaty in the English language.

Claims 1-27 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(e) as being anticipated by Samuelson (US 2003/0055776).

Samuelson teaches a computer-implemented method, system, and computer-readable medium for causing a computer to execute said method for regulating the energy flow in an energy network comprising at least a first area and a second area comprising producers and consumers, in which the energy network comprises at least one network connection that limits the transportation capacity of the energy network between said first area and said second area, said method comprises:

Claims 1, 10, 11, 17, 18 and 27,

fixing isolated energy prices (IEP4, IEP5) in the first area and in the second area in proportion to the intended energy production by the producers and the intended energy consumption by the consumers [0068]; [0070]; [0205]; [0310]; [0992]; [1669];

adjusting said isolated energy prices (IEP4, IEPS) in said first area and in said second area on the basis of simulated transportation of energy over the network connection and on the basis of the available transportation capacity [0990]; [0991]; [1681];

making data on the energy flow for the first area and the second area accessible to the producers and/or the consumers and/or an operator of the network connection [1681].

Claims 2-4, 12-14, 16 and 19-21, See reasoning applied to claims 1, 11 and 18.

Claims 5-9, 15 and 22-26, said method and system, further comprising making available transportation capacity at least partially, wherein rights to transportation capacity are made available by the producers and/or the consumers, and wherein the rights to transportation conditionally made available [0298]; [0300]; [0301]; [0305]; [0362]; [0364]-[0367].
